

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it?

24_JER_17:09 The heart [is] deceitful above all [things], and desperately wicked: who can know it? 24_JER_17_09.html